

CYCAD ESTATE HOME OWNERS ASSOCIATION NPC

Security Protocol

Introduction

This document is to serve as guideline for all role players concerned with Cycad Estate security. This would include residents, visitors / contractors and especially security guards. As security is the primary reason for all of us to be involved with the Estate it is expected of every role player to abide by these principles. Actions that undermine the security of the estate will under no circumstances be tolerated. Any incidents- or evidence of security breach should be reported to the Directors of the Estate although it is preferred that incidents be reported directly to the director involved with security. The following principles and rules apply. No domestic / contractor / gardener of any person delivering a service are allowed into the estate without a valid ID or work permit.

“The new Consumer Protection Act will not give homeowners in residential estates unlimited rights to do as they please without regard to the management and conduct rules of their homeowners' associations (HOAs).

"There would soon be chaos in an estate - and an ensuing decline in property values, security and lifestyle - if everyone just ignored the HOA rules and did their own thing. It's the existence and effect of certain rules that make estates desirable in the first place.

"Rules are made for the common good of the community of residents who have chosen to live in that area - as are those put in place by any well-run HOA for the residents of a particular estate.

"In this regard, it is also important to note that HOAs are not voluntary or informal bodies run by a handful of owners having fun and making up rules as they go along.

Most HOAs are registered Section 21 companies of which every homeowner in that particular estate is automatically a member, and thus has a very clear say in what rules are made and how the estate is run.

"The only volunteerism taking place is usually on the part of those elected by their fellow homeowners in the estate to be directors of the HOA, who often do the job on a voluntary basis despite the heavy management and fiduciary responsibilities involved.

While it is everybody's "right to choose" not to buy into a complex governed by certain management or conduct rules, those who do buy there are effectively agreeing to live by those rules, even if this means giving up some of their common law rights.”
